FARMER Program Additional Project Categories

On April 14, 2022, CARB's Federal Office approved two additional project categories within the FARMER Program. The FARMER Program now includes a new project category for zero-emission agricultural equipment and a used equipment pilot project for small programs in the San Joaquin Valley. Districts may choose to begin using these new project categories immediately.

What types of vehicles and equipment are eligible under the FARMER Program?

FARMER Program funding is available for off-road mobile diesel equipment, off-road mobile large-spark ignition (LSI) equipment, on-road heavy-duty trucks, and portable equipment, such as irrigation pump engines, when used in agricultural operations.

How can I apply for funding under the Funding Agricultural Replacement Measures for Emission Reductions (FARMER) Program?

FARMER Program funding is issued by local air districts throughout the State. Please note that not all air districts implement every type of project eligible under the FARMER Program Guidelines. For the most updated information on funding availability, project eligibility, applications, and project selection timelines, please contact your local air district. If you don't know what district you are located in, use the District Look Up Database to search for your district by city, county, or zip code.
